Memory of a Kaleidoscope

The patterned shadows sharply
remembered in my mind;
The white-misted black of learning
Breathed with thought
Golden knowledge dropped silver
Stained with roughness
The rusted hues of autumn
Were lost in the shy pink of understanding
Living bursts of yellow's sunlight
Brightened the way
To the ever-traveled road of hope
Yet, still and always
The grey of despair and opaque of hate
Clung to me.

Tomorrow is a hazy bright:

Who can tell where learning leads?
To man, to woman, to child, to death.
We shall live as every day
With the white-misted black,
the silvered golden, and grey
Only to thrill at some far spoken time
To fragile pink and brightening yellow.

MR. JOSEPH ARCUDI

Fondly known as "General Joe", Mr. Arcudi is well known by all the students of Walpole High. He can be found at the end of B wing corridor, on the baseball field and on the football field. Many of us will remember, long after we leave, the enlightening hours spent learning social studies under his able tutelage. Many more will remember the jokes and antics of a big ham. School must be brightened with laughter, and "General Joe" has certainly brightened Walpole High. So it is with deep gratitude for his aid to our teams, for enlightenment, and laughter that we dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Arcudi.

The Bits And Pieces

One person is many things. He is happiness, anger, excitement and depression, a composite of all the things which make an individual. The Class of 1968 consists of two hundred fifty such persons, each of whom is a little different from the other two hundred forty-nine. The Senior Class brings all these individuals together. It collects their moods, their joys, their sorrows, their spontaneous cheers and their reluctant moans.

Just as their class is an accumulation of all these treasured things, so is the yearbook of the Class of 1968. It is a collection of all the events, people, and memories of Walpole High, a scrapbook of faces and friends in action. It is a kaleidoscope of the ideas, the moods, and the actions of the people at Walpole High and is therefore an appropriate part of the Class of 1968.

GUIDANCE

The Guidance Department served as a buffer zone for teachers and students as they sought to reconcile the differences between the two groups. Counselors assisted in college placement, job testing and the maintenance of records. Occupational conferences were held throughout the year to encourage further education in specialized fields.

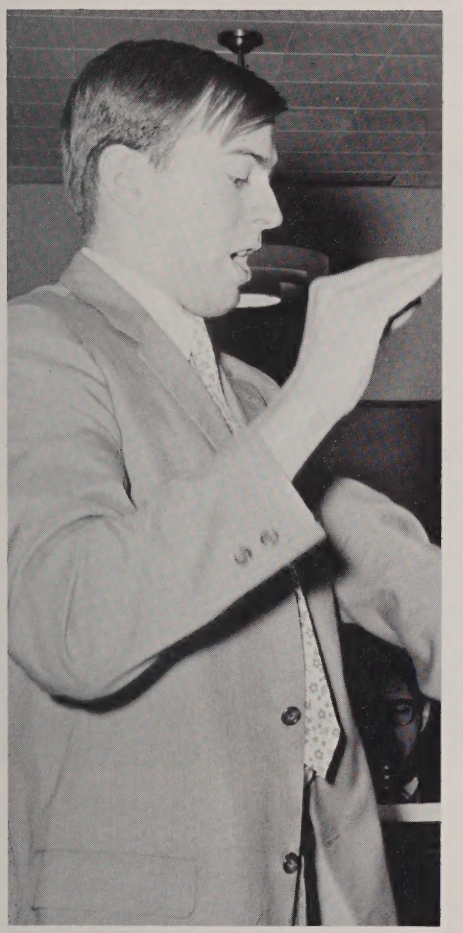
Mr. Richard Murphy

Miss Eleanor Sline



Mr. Richard Dunn

Academic Design

MUSIC

The aim of the Music Department was to expose as many students as possible to the various types of music: contemporary, opera, folk, symphony, as well as band music.

At the end of the school year, our band combined with the Canton High School Band to present a concert at Bird Park.

ART

Three-dimensional works, wood and marble sculpturing, copper working, water colors, oils and inking were just a few forms of art done in the Art Department. Students also assisted in the creation of scenery for the Dramatic Club and Senior Class Play productions.

ENGLISH

This year the English Department, under the orderly direction of Mr. Hull, attempted to provide students with an understanding of the Great Chain of Being, short story analysis, character development, the fundamentals of writing, and, as always, grammar. The teachers also accompanied their classes to see the Drama Club Production of Pride and Prejudice.

LANGUAGE

The Foreign Language Newspaper and the language lab played an integral part in language courses throughout the year. Students learned about the cultures of foreign countries and also studied literary works of authors of these various lands.

SOCIAL STUDIES

In an attempt to produce well-informed citizens for the future, the Social Studies Department emphasized outside research. Students participated in debates on Vietnam and the United States' foreign relations. In the course of the year the P.O.D. classes held a mock murder trial and worked on a utopian project.

SCIENCE

The goal of the Science Department was to have students learn through experimentation. The laboratory played an important role in teaching the principles of chemistry, physics, and biology this year. A new feature at Walpole High School was a chemistry course which met six periods a week, enabling students to have a two hour lab.

MATHEMATICS

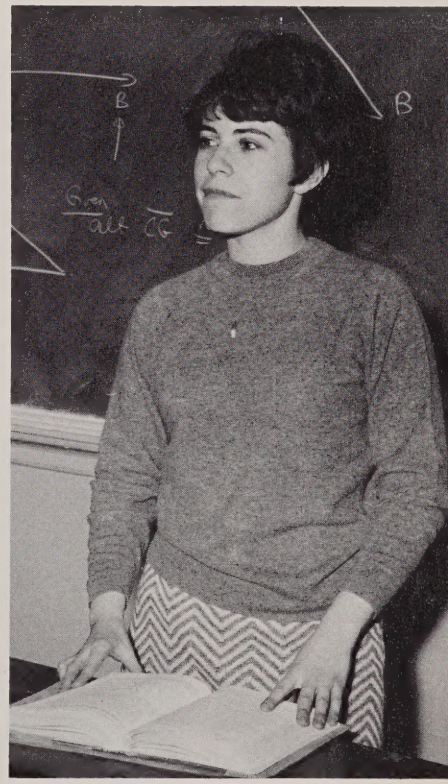
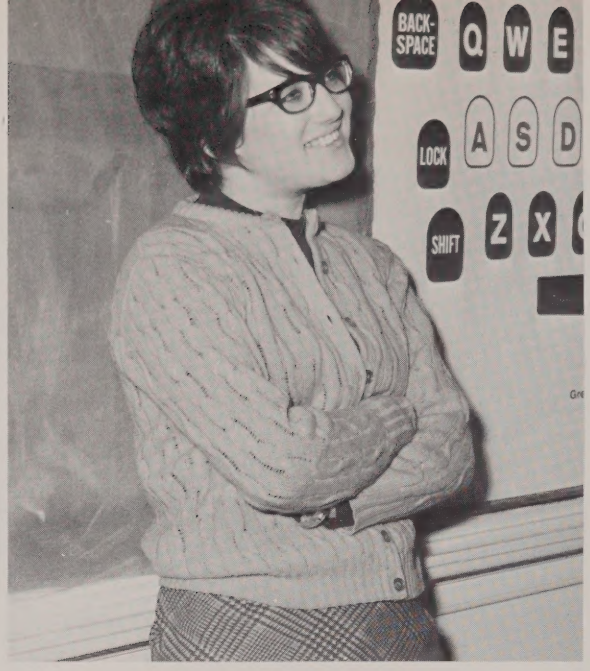
The Math Department again succeeded in convincing all that 2 + 2 = 4. Its success extended far beyond as many grasped a solid understanding of the fascination of math. Miss Sline, who has been a multiplying factor of the department for twenty-seven years, will be greatly missed when she leaves Walpole for Needham High.

Mrs. Judith Thompson



Miss Paula Rackoff



Miss Eleanor Rachins

Mr. Raymond Valaitis
Head of Department

BUSINESS

Besides teaching how to use a typewriter, decipher shorthand, and speculate stocks and bonds, the Business Department broadened the student's knowledge of business techniques by sponsoring several profitable trips to the Greater Boston area. Included were journeys to see our court system in action, to observe the manufacturing of parts at General Motors, and to watch office life at the Foxboro Company.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

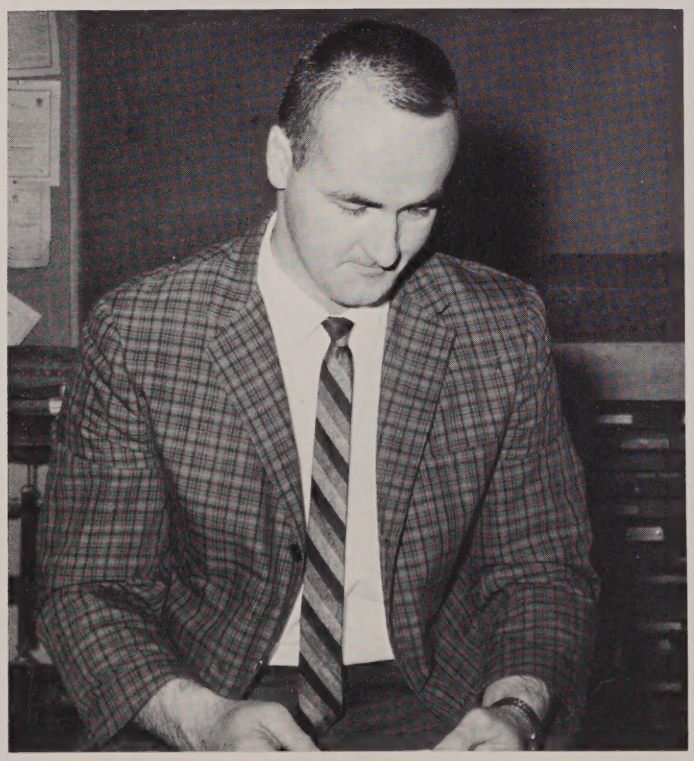
In addition to normal classwork, the Industrial Arts Department provided many services to the school and community. Students printed tickets for plays as well as school stationery and graduation programs. Three members of the mechanical drawing classes made a complete study of the building and composed a scale drawing of its layout for the Walpole Future School Needs Committee.



Mr. William Walsh

Mr. Edwin Page

Mr. Chandler Phinney

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Both boys' and girls' physical education classes played a variety of sports, including tag football, basketball, lacrosse, softball, and archery. With the completion of the new courts, tennis was added to the program. In addition to learning game skills, students also learned to get along together and to function as a team.

Beyond the Call

This year the custodians went above and beyond the call of duty in keeping the school in operation. On May 1, they quickly and efficiently removed all traces of spray paint from the walls of the corridors. Later in the month, the custodial staff assisted firefighters in their search of the "bomb".

While Mr. Clean (Frank Calf) and his task force were scouring walls and searching for bombs, their female counterparts in the culinery workshop were scouring pans and searching for meatballs.

The Junior Class

Strobe lights and florescent instruments highlighted the Junior Class Dance, "Love Is . . .", held in the school gymnasium on March 8. The Mercy Men of the Surf lent a psychedelic atmosphere as students enjoyed the sounds.

An entirely different mood was set by the orchestra music at the Blue Hills Country Club when the Junior Class also held their prom on April 15. This event proved to be the most successful social event of the year.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Walpole High's Student Council sponsored a number of activities. Among these were the Autumn Queen Dance, Tag Day, and Bermuda Day. The Council periodically made reports to the student body in order to keep them informed of their activities.

HONOR SOCIETY

Membership in Walpole High's Honor Society shows a distinct mark of achievement on the part of the student. In order to attain membership, he must have maintained at least a "C" average through first semester of junior year, and must have earned points from his grades and extra-curricular activities.

LIBRARY ASSISTANTS

Stamping books, changing covers, and looking for Miss Beattie were only a few of the activities of the library staff members this year. The girls were of great assistance to students doing research papers, looking for magazines, or simply rushing to catch the bus.

OFFICE STAFF

Walpole High's office girls gave up their free periods in order to work in the main office, Mr. Riley's office, and the Guidance Department as well. They delivered messages and the daily news bulletins, answered phones, and also worked on attendance and dismissal notices.

Foreign Language Newspaper

The Foreign Language Newspaper was a fairly new W.H.S. publication. Edited by Nancy Paul, the paper was published five times a year. Feature articles included crossword puzzles, editorials of general interest, and articles describing customs of various countries. Written in French, Spanish, and German, the Foreign Language Newspaper brought a cultural air to the halls of Walpole High.

School Newspaper

Walpole High's newspaper was officially named The Rebelaire. In keeping with enthusiastic school spirit and athletic Rebel teams, The Rebelaire published editorials concerning student interest in activities, the still-controversial dress code, and cafeteria lunches. A sports roundup section, gossip columns, and a section for advice to the lovelorn completed one of the most successful newspapers W.H.S. has ever had.

Each year members of debating clubs across the country debate one issue. This year's topic was: "Resolved—That Congress should establish uniform regulations to control criminal investigation procedures."

Novice and varsity debaters participated in afternoon and Saturday tournaments. They visited Boston College and Rhode Island College as well as neighboring high schools.

Pep Squad

Rebel Rousers!

Co-captains Jeanne Spillane and Beth Parquette lead a cheer.

The Pep Squad was a new addition to Walpole High this year. Created to promote school spirit, the Pep Squad was introduced at the cheerleader-baton squad football game. The members, dressed alike in blue sweaters and skirts, appeared at most of the football, basketball, and hockey games.

Math Club

A member of the Greater Boston Math League, the Math Club competed five times this year with eight other schools in the same division. The club was made up of about eight members, five of whom participated in each contest.

Members of Walpole High's Chess Club checkmated as well as stalemated this year. The small group concentrated on the moves involved in a good chess game as they learned how to play with acquired skill.

One picture is worth a thousand words, even if the Photography Club members had to take a thousand steps to get it. Carloads of flashbulbs, miles of film, and limitless patience helped supply the yearbook staff with a kaleidoscopic scrapbook.

Future Nurses Association

The members of the F.N.A. travelled to a number of neighboring hospitals, among them Peter Bent Brigham and Foxboro State Hospitals. They also heard several guest speakers of the medical profession. As a result, they were able to witness first-hand hospital life and to more fully appreciate the value of their future careers.

Future Teachers Association

Members of the F.T.A. gave up one study period a week during the time between February and April vacations. The girls were then able to assist teachers with their classes at the Plimpton School. Members gained practical teacher aide experience which helped most of them decide that teaching was the career for them.

After months of preparation, the Dramatics Club presented "Pride and Prejudice" on February 29 and March 1. The play was effectively performed and received an enthusiastic response from the student body. Throughout the entire year the club also sponsored trips to see plays in an effort to encourage interest in the theater.

Art Club

Under the supervision of Mr. Lazzeri, the Art Club painted the scenery for "Pride and Prejudice" and the Senior Class Play, "The Perfect Idiot." The props added to the success of both productions and were greatly appreciated.

Stage Crew

The Stage Crew played an important role in the presentation of several productions during the 1967-1968 school year. Those behind-the-scene men handled lighting, sound effects, and other problems which arose during the presentations of "Kaleidoscopic Kapers," "The Perfect Idiot," and the annual talent show featuring "Banana Ross and the Plantations." With their continuous assistance, all presentations and assemblies were great successes.

Treking from the A-V Room to a social studies or an English class to flick a switch on a "broken" movie projector proved to be only one of the duties of the A-V Club members. They also very competently handled films and the transportation of screens and projectors throughout the building. A-V members made available audio and visual enjoyment to students and faculty alike.

Weather Club

Mr. Conkey's Weather Club faithfully made reports on threatening weather conditions. Reports of carefully-plotted high and low pressure areas, opposing cold fronts clashing over Mount Washington, and warm air over cold ocean waters were all heard over the public address system. Students listening to announcements found them very similar to the weather reports they later heard on the radio.

Ski Team

Five Walpole High School Rebels had the audacity to call themselves a ski team— and then entered three Massachusetts Bay League races, including two cross-country meets on homemade equipment. Their success can be measured by the fact that they have won for Walpole the privilege of participating in all future League competition.

Win Over Needham

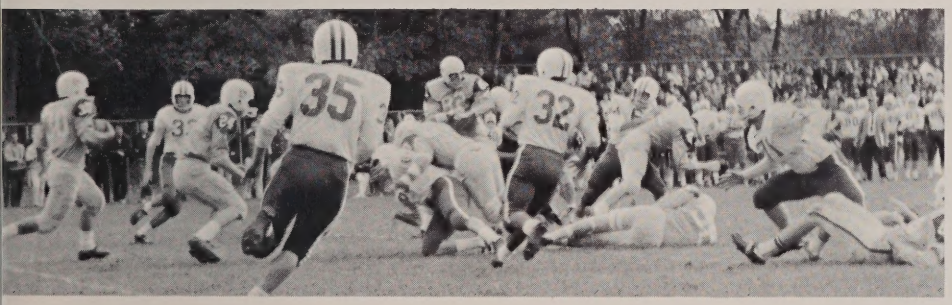
After opening the season with an inspiring win over Needham, the 1967 Rebel football team was plagued by the loss of hard-running Jim MacNeil. The squad fell victim to the more powerful members of the Bay State League. As the number of key injured players increased, the number of games lost similarly increased.



Mike Cassidy, sophomore on the loose.

Evidence of this trend was the Thanksgiving Day Game on rain-soaked, mud-clogged Bowditch Field where the Rebels were forced to use halfback Kevin Cunnane to replace their two injured quarterbacks, Bill Kebler and Sandy Weissent. Spirit, however, was high throughout the whole season, hitting its peak at the Norwood game. At this time, the Walpole squad flashed its "razzle-dazzle" play. Sandy Weissent lateraled to Bill Hinchey, who passed to Dennis Collins. Dennis then lateraled back to Sandy, who completed the play by throwing a forty-yard pass. The "razzle-dazzle" play promises better seasons ahead.

The 1967 Rebel Soccer Team left a record which will present a challenge for future teams to match. The kickers, following the pace set by the league's second highest scorer, Al Barrett, came up to take over fourth place at the end of the season. Their record of 7–6–1 was a vast improvement over last year's. Aided by a mid-season burst of five wins and one tie out of a possible seven, the Rebels surprised the top teams by tying Needham and beating Wellesley. Both Bill Wissman and Al Barrett were placed on the All-Scholastic Team.

Fleet-Footed Rebels

Despite the fact that the squad was captained by Gary Peyton and Russell Mattson, two of the finest long distance runners in the school's history, it was a disappointing season for the Rebel harriers. Their teammates were unable to place in the top three slots required of a winning team.

Gary put in an especially noteworthy effort as he broke both Walpole and Natick course records. He also placed second in the Regional Conference and fourth in the state meet.

Although the record is not impressive, the entire team did well in Division III of the state meet. They placed fourth out of twenty-six teams and later came in fourth out of ten in the Conference Meet.

Ninety-six girls tried out for twenty-two positions on the varsity and junior varsity field hockey teams. After two cuts, thirty-nine young "ladies" remained to play other teams in fog, rain, heat, and cold.

The first game resulted in a resounding defeat at the hands of Wellesley. However, a would-be undefeated season for Wellesley was lost when they forfeited their game to Walpole because of an ineligible player. The expected victories over Framingham North and Needham did not come about. Betty Jankowski, the team's high scorer, led the forward line in a continuous push toward the goal cages but was constantly driven back by strong defensive players and goalies.

The girls came from behind a 1-0 score in the last half of the Braintree game to put in two goals to win their most difficult game of the year. The last game of the season was another victory for the feminine Rebels against a traditional Walpole rival, Norwood High. The girls slid through mud and into puddles as they ended their season to tie with Needham for second place in the Bay State League.

Redball clears it.

Scores don't tell the whole story but, unfortunately, they do tell the final one. Except for the brilliant playing of Kevin Woods, who received the "Best Sportsman" award, the story this year failed to have a happy ending. Kevin was the number one crowd-pleaser in the league, turning up save after save in an heroic but vain attempt to lead the Rebels on to victory. We know that oncoming freshmen from East and West will help the South to rise again.

Merrick Gray, alone and in the lead.

The old rule about running in the halls was temporarily lifted this year to accommodate the Indoor Track Team. While the long-distance runners chased bats in the attic, the dashers and hurdlers pounded a path in the English hall. On the real track, Kevin McClean starred as the point gainer, accumulating sixty points.

Although the loss of injured miler Gary Peyton hurt, the team did its best and exhibited some fine individual performances. With a strong turnout of underclassmen, Coach John Gray is looking forward to conquering the team's lack of depth problems and improving the record.

Baseball 1968

As head coach for the first time, "General" Joe Arcudi turned out one of the most improved baseball teams seen at Walpole High in quite a while. Through the constantly strong pitching of Sandy Weissent and Doug Davis, the Rebels came within one pitch of qualifying for the state tournament. This pitch came in the last inning of our intense battle with Natick: we were ahead 5 to 4, Natick at bat, two outs, two on, two strikes on the batter. Sandy fired a low fast ball – POW! A three-run homer put Natick ahead at 7 to 5, and the Rebs failed to rally. Let's hope they rally next year.

Kay Louise contemplates as Charlie Cinto umps.

Diane Gardner learns to cut corners.

When the girls' softball season opened, Walpole had no great hopes for a championship. Miss Allen, the coach, was hardly encouraged by the performance at practice. She was more often moved to laughter. The prevailing attitude was reflected in the often repeated motto – "Maybe we don't win many games, but we have a lot of fun."

Surprisingly enough, the girls won their first game. "Luck," said Miss Allen. Even more surprisingly, the girls won their next game. "Luck," Miss Allen still insisted.

But the luck prevailed, and the girls ended the season in a three-way tie for first place with Norwood and Framingham South. Maybe the motto should be changed.

Golf Team
FRONT ROW: B. Connolly, D. Lodge, J. Day. SECOND ROW: Coach Phinney, J. Connolly, J. Farrell, G. Gerrish. NOT PRESENT: D. Jordan, M. Hewins.

Under the senior leadership of "D.J." (captain Don Jordan) and the Ohio Strong Boy (Dave Lodge), the golf team finished with three strong consecutive victories to earn a record of five wins against four losses. Greg Gerrish and Jack Farrell, with the assistance of John Day and Mike Hewins, proved valuable in the "clutch." To the surprise of everyone, the sophomore duo, the "Con" men, Bob and John Connolly, had respective records of highest percentage and most matches won.

The "Chan" men proved to be the most experienced drivers in the league, thanks to daily practice at Coach Phinney's Driving Range. In conclusion, the efforts of the team were highlighted by Don Jordan and Greg Gerrish, who both qualified for the state championships.

Spring Track

Senior co-captains Gary Peyton and George Young led Walpole to an unusual year in track. Lacking depth to be a winner in dual meets, Walpole had enough outstanding stars to be one of the best teams in the league in the really big meets.

For example, the season's high point was the first-ever Belmont Relays State Championship for Walpole with Gary leading teammates Andy Tucker, Kevin McLean, and Steve Rondeau to four gold medals as the Class C Sprint Medley winners.

Despite a 1-9 record in league dual meets, Walpole was second best in the Conference Meet "paper championship." (The meet itself was canceled and the medals were awarded on the basis of best performances during the year.) George brought home two gold medals with Gary, Kevin, George Hossfield, and John Kateon getting a medal apiece.

The name "Gary Peyton" is now in the books for three all-time Walpole records. He also scored Walpole's finest victory in track with a mile win in Class C in the State Meet. Following that, he took a fourth in the all-class race and a fifth in the New England Championship against the greatest field of schoolboy runners ever gathered in one race.

1968 Rebel Band

This year's Rebel Band was the best that Walpole has seen for many years. Under the competent and exciting direction of Mr. Dunn, the band appeared at most games and rallies. The Rebels have also been praised for their hospital concerts and individual participation in SEMSBA, district, and all-state bands. Promising underclassmen indicate that the band will continue to gain in popularity.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM

Douglas Wells was a quiet boy. His main interest lay in the field of art. An avid painter, he excelled in creating pictures of soldiers, castles, and medieval weapons. His special hobby was that of collecting medieval armor. These interests were not known to many people because of his quiet, unassuming nature. They will, however, be the things which stand out as classmates think of Douglas and mourn his tragic death.

Senior Class History

There are three common denominators which all graduating classes share: the way in which the class is viewed by its school—the faculty and student body; the way in which the school is regarded by a class member; and the ways in which the class has achieved recognition for the school. While it is these three factors that make all graduating classes alike, it is these same factors that give each class its individuality. This individuality results from the fact that each class is made up of individuals whose contributions are unique.

We have been Walpole High School's class of 1968; though much like every other class in many respects, we have been unprecedented. Our history should reveal what has made our class unique. Each of the four years has been arranged in this order: how Walpole High School regarded any member of our class, how the individual class member regarded his school, and what have been the accomplishments of the class of 1968.

Our freshman was lanky; he wore braces; he was gullible. He would probably have believed a senior if that senior told him the gym was on the fourth floor. This freshman frequently caused mass traffic jams, and he often gave an upperclassman reason to wonder what sin he had committed that would merit this type of punishment. All of these details were part of the freshman picture . . . another kid, who could not possibly be old enough to be in the ninth grade.

Our freshman was not just another moron, a gray ball of clay to be molded by three varieties of upperclassmen. He was a human being, and the impressions he formed of the school during that first year were not always flattering ones. But flattering impressions are not often created by an environment which is indifferent to a novice's arrival, and the freshman soon found himself floating helplessly in a sea of apathy. It all began that first day when without warning the freshman was introducted to the morning announcements which he would hear at least seven hundred times during the next four years. Bong . . . "Good morning. May I have your attention for a moment please . . ." Immediately following that abrupt introduction to Walpole High School was the first race to pass from room 206 in the old building to room 114 in section B, all within four minutes. And there was the perennial question, "What's the difference between block 5 period 1 and period 5 block 1?"

The freshman of 1964–1965, apart from being simply a man of observation, was also a man of action. He made significant contributions to our high school. Kevin Woods became the first freshman goalie ever to be on the varsity hockey team. He later was awarded the "Most-Valuable-Player" award of the State Tourney, in which Walpole High School won the championship by beating Norwood one to nothing.

1964–1965 has also gone down in Walpole High School history as the year of the Great Cafeteria Strike. The strike was instigated by seniors and supported by all but a few students. Whether or not the goals sought by the strike were ever realized is doubtful.

Freshman Initiation Dance

Our class was led that year, and for the two successive years, by our president, Mike Hanley. That year Kevin Delaney served as vice-president. Elaine Lindblom and Betty Jankowski, secretary and treasurer respectively, each served all four years. As freshmen, we sponsored one school function, the Senior Aloha Dance.

The sophomore looked less anemic than he had looked as a freshman. He was less easily deceived than he had been a year ago. He began to vocalize his objections to school policies, and he was listened to. The dress code met with as much dissension as accordance, although it had been democratically initiated by a twelve-man board composed equally of students and faculty.

By this year our sophomore knew that he was supposed to laugh at Mr. Burke's jokes, and he knew where to find room 003. He soon discovered that geometry is a lot different from Algebra I and a lot easier—at first.

Our class elected Sandy Weissent to serve as vice-president, a position he retained during his junior year. We sophomores sponsored two projects. The class dance, "Joker's Night Out", met with popular, as well as financial support, and the class trip to Salisbury Beach, which fell on a hot, June day, met with just as much school spirit. That year was the year of the "Four -Bomb-Scares", which were particularly unusual in that they happened on successive Fridays. There was also that Monday on which we had no school because someone had removed the hinges from every door in the building. A captive student body and a devoted faculty made up the lost days on two Saturday mornings.

Our junior, like generations of juniors before him, had no individuality. Tradition regards the junior as the foil of the senior, and so our junior became just another negative of the senior portrait. In general, he was clumsy, irresponsible, and insignificant. He was reassigned to the homeroom he had had as a sophomore.

Although it is the junior who is representative of irresponsibility, it was the sophomore who staged a protest demonstration on Common Street one Friday because of a misunderstanding concerning their class dance.

Our main class function was to sponsor a prom for the seniors, a problem we tackled by holding one car wash during the fall and another during the spring. The 1967 Walpole High School prom, "Forget Me Not", was held during April at the Blue Hills Country Club. In June of that year our class also sponsored a trip to Horseneck Beach (it poured.)

Then in September of 1967 we were the Senior class of Walpole High School. Our last year was packed with emotional experiences. The school was surprised to see that our class had become miniature Stalins overnight.

We were annoyed at having to go to Boston to sit for our senior portraits. This was no coveted "first" for our class. As the middle of the scholastic year approached, panic set in: "I don't know where to apply and it's already past Christmas and Miss Sline's called me to her office again to discuss my applications . . ." For a few months contentment set in. We were all physically fit thanks to the daily four-minute miles between classes; we had become acclimatized to the drafty, old gym.

The Class of 1968 was led by president Sandy Weissent and vice-president Alan Browne and sponsored three pre-June activities. We began in September by holding Walpole's first computer dance, which was the most successful school dance in years. In January, the all-senior cast of "The Perfect Idiot" went into rehearsal for the comedy hit of the winter season. It was also during the month of January that our class began working on its third project. Volunteers braved ice, sleet and snow in order to take a complete census for the town. By involving ourselves in this project, we became the first class to attempt such an extensive, cooperate undertaking.

May was our last month of classes. "Senioritis" set in no later than usual. Homework during the last few weeks was no lighter than usual. Finals spared none but those few students with an "85" or better yearly average for a particular course.

Then we, the Class of 1968, graduated on June 4.

"THE PERFECT IDIOT"

Three months of work and anxiety (particularly on the part of Mrs. Willey) went into the production of this year's Senior Class Play, "The Perfect Idiot." Both the cast and the audience thoroughly enjoyed this farce concerning the problems of a high school genius, his radio sponsor, parents, and friends. As usual, it was a big financial success.

"Somewhere My Love"

The Junior Prom, "Somewhere My Love", was held on Monday, April 15, in the Starlight Room of the Blue Hills Country Club. The regal atmosphere of the main ballroom overshadowed the drizzling weather.

After dinner was served everyone went through the receiving line and then danced to the strains of "Moon River," and "Somewhere My Love." Later in the evening the seniors participated in the Grand March which was led by the Junior Class Officers. Everybody felt a bit of sadness when the clock struck twelve, ending an enjoyable evening.

"The Graduate" Highlights Class Night

Class Night 1968 was not the usual dull, drawn-out series of readings and awards which it usually is. Instead, it was a thoroughly enjoyable evening of light-hearted satiric fun poked at the administration, the dress code, school dances, and Dedham High.

Created by a group of enterprising seniors led by Roberta Houghton, "The Graduate" replaced the usual reading of the Senior Class History. Narrated by Dorinda Giammarco, the skits recalled the Senior Class' more memorable moments at Walpole High. They were interspersed between readings of the Class Will and the presentation of athletic and academic awards and provided a gay atmosphere which pervaded the evening.

". . . that all men are created equal."

Graduation was held on June 4 in the gymnasium instead of the South Quadrangle. Inclement weather forced the cancellation of the traditional outdoor ceremony, and friends and relatives crowded into the gym just as skies cleared and the sun came out to stay. Honor essays were presented by David Anderson, Nancy Benziger, Nancy Paul, and Albert Sprague. In her speech on civil rights, Nancy Paul offered a challenge to the youth of the country:

. . . "Today we claim that all men are created equal, yet to many we deny equal treatment. We claim that all men have certain unalienable rights, yet we deny certain human beings the right to buy property or to secure employment. We claim that all men are entitled to the blessings of liberty, yet many Americans are deprived of the liberties we in Walpole enjoy . . .

. . . "Since laws cannot be used to destroy deep-rooted prejudices in the older generation, it is the youth who must take on this difficult but necessary responsibility . . .

. . . "As the youth of today and the adults of tomorrow, it is up to us to succeed where other generations have failed. Besides enforcing the laws, we must work to eliminate the causes which make it necessary for these laws to exist. We must support groups whose purpose it is to improve intergroup relations. We must emphasize the role of education in taking the lead in the attack upon prejudice. It is through the schools that children of one race can get to know and understand children of another race. In colleges, equal educational opportunity can be an important step in solving the civil rights problem.

"Most important of all, we must do everything we can to persuade people to change their attitudes and to make them realize that the Negro boy who is fighting for the rights of people in other parts of the world is entitled to all of the rights enjoyed by people in his own country – the United States of America.

"It is the youth of today who must stop the flow of racial prejudice from one generation to the next and uphold the ideals established in the Declaration of Independence. There is still hope that this can be done."

Diplomas were awarded by School Committee Chairman Mr. James Driscoll. Before their presentation, however, Mr. Driscoll gave a response to Nancy's challenge:

"As a member of the so-called older generation, it is with some hesitation that I attempt to bridge the gap that is said to exist between us. After all, the world which you are inheriting from our hands is, indeed, wracked with prejudice, plague, poverty, and pestilence. Our ancient moral heritage is trampled upon in the very name of freedom, and the chasm that divides our preachments from our performances looms wide and deep. In the face of all this, I would not blame you, therefore, if you looked upon any words of mine with doubt and skepticism.

"Perhaps the prime cause of your discontent and the focus of the nation's bewilderment is the cruel war that continues to rage in Vietnam. Nor has Walpole been spared from its bitterness. Three times in the past four months in the inner recesses of our souls have we heard the whisper of our sons:

"Here dead we lie because we did not choose
To live and shame the land from which we sprung.

Life, to be sure, is nothing much to lose;
But young men think it is, and we were young."

"So, too, were we once young. So, too, has our generation's path through history been marked by the crosses of war in every corner of the globe. So, too, did we once dream, as you do now, and as our fathers did before us, of an America at peace where love and brotherhood would flourish in fact and not in words alone. If we have fallen short of our goal, we are not, however, to be universally condemned.

"We reject as wholly inaccurate the popular concept of collective guilt. While it is true that racial and economic inequities, war, and turmoil abound, it is also true that individual men and women of good will have dedicated themselves to eradicate these and the other evils which plague mankind. To say otherwise would be to equate the slaveholder with the slave, the assassin with his victim, the tyrant with the oppressed. Moreover, the idea of collective guilt is too convenient an umbrella, under which those who stand idly by seek to avoid the responsibility before God and man which each of us has to pursue one's conscience and to build a better world.

"And the key to it all is love.

"One day, you will pledge your fidelity to one man or one woman for the limits of your mutual lives. And that is love.

"One day, you will hold your own children in your arms or, as they grow older, gather them in joy and comradeship to dream dreams and plan for a thousand tomorrows. And that is love.

"One day, you will come, as your parents have tonight to watch your son or daughter enter with hope the gateway of adulthood. And that is love.

"And may you be spared, as others have not been spared, from ever following a flag-draped caisson to a green hillside, there to lay your son to rest. For that, too, is love. But it is a love unanswered, a love edged with sadness, a love which weeps in the darkness and the loneliness of night.

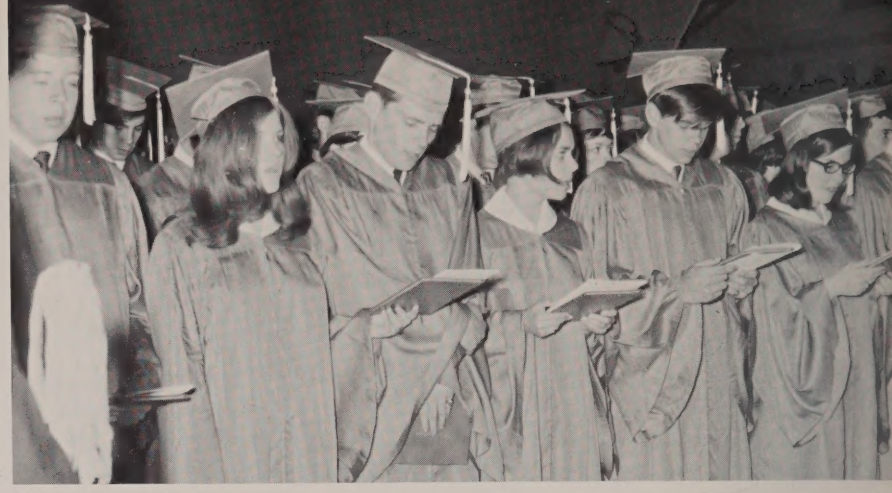
"And so, if the America we pass on to you is not always marked by justice, by beauty and by truth, nor does it always echo to the sounds of music, of poetry, and of gentle laughter, it is nonetheless true that we give it over to you with love in our hearts and with the assurance that there are, indeed, moments in every man's life when he glimpses the Eternal and that these interludes, however brief, will be well worth all your effort, your sacrifice, and your longing.

"Believe, then, in your chosen vocation and in yourself. Believe in your country, its institutions, its traditions, its ideals. Believe in your God and accept what that implies.

"If you cannot, you are lost.

"If you can – if you do – you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

"Walpole, Oh Walpole High
We're here to sing your praise . . ."



Valedictorian and graduation speaker Albert Sprague with Principal Wayne Stacy.
